NUMBER 48

Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS—Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, and all I have read in the last week is about the Democratic uprising of November 4th. It was a my birthday and the boys of the party really did themselves proud in my honor. The Republicans were looking for a punch in the jaw, but not for a kick in the pants at the same time. Why, there were men beat at this wake that thought they had a dead to their seat. We will kinder start in alphabetically with the disasters and take 'em in that order, starting with Illinois.

An old Democratic friend of mine, J. Ham Lewis, who has red whiskers, and a green vest to match, used to be in the Senate away back during the days when we was fixing it so there would never be another war. If my Emily Post Etiquette book serves me right, I think he is about the only Democrat in some distance to get a red whisker in that stately hall, and after all these years he is going back. His facial adornment has shed from a Clara Bow red to a kind of a Henna grey, and the old vest has got many an egg spot concealed behind its pearl buttons. But Ham can carry one and bathe the other and he will make a new entrance into the old "Arena Del Toros."

It wasn't only that he got back in there, but it was the spectacular manner that he did it. The Republicans had their strongest Woman up against him, Ruth Hanna McCormack. She had spent a few hundred thousand in the primaries, but evidently forgot to spend any on the race. That would be like spending all your money in taxi fare, to go to the ball game, but none to spend to get in after you got there. But Ruth made a mighty fine race, and maby it's just as well she is not in there. I don't think a woman belongs in there. Not a nice woman anyhow.

It's funny how a smart Political Woman like her could have guessed right on the Prohibition thing. How anybody could go wrong on what Illinois would do is beyond me. Ham he won't make em as good a Woman as Ruth would, but he will make em a good man.

Then continuing alphabetically we come to Oklahoma. Another old resident of the Senate got back after all these years. Our Blind man, Senator Gore. He used to be a failure in there from our Country. Then when he happened to be able to see further than the mob during the war why he lost out; now when the mob has caught up with him, and they can look back instead of having to look forward why they send him back in there. That gives Oklahoma two Democrats which is of course as it should be, for we are a liberty loving people.

You going to hear an awful lot in the next few years about a man from South Dakota named Benlow. He is a Democrat and from South Dakota. Now that's like a Zulu being discovered on the Behring sea. He is a comical old rascal, with a lot of humor and about twice as much common sense as humor so he will be out of place two ways in the senate. Watch him and remember the name, B-E-U-L-O-W, and if he is to speak anywhere near you don't miss him.

Course the old timers got back in without even opposition like Pat Harrison, and Joe Robinson of Arkansas. They will be in the Senate when the Farmers get relief. Joe Robinson is mighty liable to be the Democratic Nominee in '32. It will be between him and Franklin D. Roosevelt, and they are both mighty fine men. Joe if they want a dry, and Roosevelt if they want a wet. But the wet was seemed to kinder swamp everything at this meelee and are gaining strength every day, so in '32 it looks like the wet Candidate will have the edge at the Nomination.

Still the west got a long way to go yet. You see those States that voted wet this time were ones that were known to be wet all the time, when you start voting on it all through the middle west and south you will find a different tale, so both Parties will be up against it as to just what to do in '32. They will want to be wet for the wet voters and dry for the dry voters, and they won't know which one has the most votes, and they will be busier than a Bird Dog trying to figure which way to jump.

That gives you a pretty good line on Politics; their personal feelings have nothing to do with it, it's which way will the most votes be. I believe a Candidate would go over Niagara Falls if he was sure the wind was with him.

EMIL KRAUS NEW PRES. B. OF T.

DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS ELECTED TUESDAY NIGHT

At the regular annual meeting of Grayling Board of Trade Tuesday night Emil Kraus was elected president, to succeed T. W. Hanson, and Mr. Hanson was elected vice president, to succeed Dr. C. R. Keyport.

The new directors elected were Emil Kraus, M. A. Bates, Harold Jarmine, T. W. Hanson and George Burke. These, together with C. W. Olsen, F. R. Welsh, O. P. Schumann, Dr. Keyport and Thomas Cassidy, will comprise the board of directors for the year.

At the meeting a motion was passed giving the president authority to appoint a committee to look after the winter sports. It also was voted to continue monthly dinners during the winter season.

There was a fair size crowd present at the annual meeting. Immediately after adjournment of the meeting the new board of directors met, and elected officers. The selection of Mr. Kraus for president was unanimous on the part of the directors. A. J. Joseph, who has served the board so well during the past two years, declined to accept the office of secretary for another year, and the selection of his successor was put over until a later date. In the meantime Mr. Joseph will continue to act.

The work of Grayling Board of Trade has resulted in putting Grayling on the map more than ever before. Everyone here must realize that Grayling is the BEST advertised town in Northern Michigan. Our popularity is growing by leaps and bounds, and this fact is due to the efforts of the Board of Trade. It has now become a real business and there is every reason for keeping on "bitting the iron while it is hot. Grayling is a better town than it was five years ago and five years from now it is bound to be a whole lot better than it is now.

The president of the Board of Trade is the direct representative of the business interests of the town. The people, especially the merchants, must back him and his officers up. The merchants are the largest beneficiaries of the efforts of the B. of T. while every other property owner participates to a more or less degree. It's a thankless job to be an official of a Board of Trade. Their efforts are often rebuffed by the very persons they may wish to assist. "Make Grayling a still better town" is a darn good slogan and it can be done if all will do his part. That doesn't mean just financially only but the officers need the moral support of the people as well. Come out to the Board affairs. When they hold their meetings, be there. Your very presence is a stimulation for your officers.

It's not entirely a matter of money that keeps a Board of Trade functioning, but the cooperation of the people of the town.

Get back of the new officers. If we slacken up now we're going to lose a lot of the ground we have already gained. We cannot afford to let that happen. Our winter sports are making us famous as well as our summer resources. Bigger things are coming to Grayling just as fast as we are able to handle them. It takes a capably managed Board of Trade, backed up by the people of the town, to put them over.

Quit crabbing and get into the band wagon for a bigger and better Grayling. If everyone will do his part here is no telling how far we can go.

In getting the house ready for winter, keep in mind its warmth, safety, convenience, economy of operation, and appearance. Let your fall housecleaning contribute to these ends in each detail.

HUNTERS FIND BODY OF WOMAN

HAD BEEN DEAD NEARLY YEAR FLESH EATEN BY ANIMALS

L. R. Nummer, Alma, and Wallace Updike, Belding, hunters, came to town Wednesday noon and reported to Sheriff Bobenmoyer that they had discovered the body of a woman in a shallow grave 4 1/2 miles west of Frederic near the Manistee river. Sheriff Bobenmoyer and Coroner Emil Kraus and Undertaker George Sorenson went with the men and found parts of a body sticking out of a grave. Upon examination they found that animals had eaten most of the flesh from the body.

It was the body of a woman apparently about 45 years of age. There were no shoes and apparently the only clothing was a heavy pleated skirt which may have been either tan or pink in color, as indicated in places where the cloth was folded. The hair was black. There were full sets of teeth and the fifth tooth on the upper right jaw contained a silver filling. The bone at the right of the nose had been crushed in. The body had been wrapped in tent cloth and was bound strongly about with heavy window sash cord. The wrappings and cord had been somewhat shredded, apparently by wild animals that had attacked the body.

The grave was only about two feet in depth and apparently had been poorly covered as was indicated by piles of dirt that no doubt came from the hole when the grave was dug.

The remains were brot to the undertaking parlors of Sorenson Bros. and will be interred in the "potters' field."

There is every evidence that the woman had met with foul play but just where she came from is, of course, a mystery and one that may never be solved.

A later opinion offered by George Sorenson, undertaker, is that the woman was young and probably between ages of 18 and 25, and possibly about 5 feet and five inches in height. And Sheriff Bobenmoyer is of the opinion that the body was placed there some time since last winter or some time last spring or summer.

Plans to make one or two out of doors play suits for the younger children this winter, to wear, like overcoats, over their regular clothing. The Bureau of Home Economics will tell you how.

HUNTER KILLS 3 DOE FAWNS

2ND OFFENSE WITHIN YEAR. CASE GOES TO CIRCUIT COURT

Not content to await the opening of the deer hunting season Harold Coon of Roscommon and Charles A. Cobb of Grayling apparently went the limit in law violation when they not only killed deer out of season but also the deer killed were does and also fawns. If anyone can beat that for brazenness we don't want to know them. A person committing so flagrant a violation can hardly be termed a good citizen.

Coon and Cobb were apprehended by Conservation officers Earl Dutton, Merit McClure, Herman Langdon, and Bill Wilson. A search warrant for the Coon home about a mile east of Roscommon revealed the three doe fawns. Coon and Cobb were arrested and Cobb was arraigned, and we understand, plead guilty and paid a fine and costs. Coon, who had been convicted for violation of the game laws within a year, was given a hearing and his case bound over to the next term of Circuit court. The former charge against Coon was for killing a deer after the close of the season last year.

Wm. Cobb Found With Venison In Possession

Cobb is a son of William I. Cobb, residing in Grayling across from the aviation field. A search warrant for the home of his father revealed 11 quart jars of canned venison in the latter's possession. The father was arrested and plead guilty before Justice Thos. Cassidy, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs or be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of 30 days. Not being able to pay the fine he is now serving his time in jail.

These offenses all occurred before the opening of the hunting season. Since the season began the officers report little or no violations.

Rob Hunter of His Deer

Donald Whitford, an employee of the State highway department, reports that while hunting Saturday in Beaver Creek township, he shot a deer. He says he dragged it some distance and left it while he went ahead toward a hill to find out which was the shortest route to the highway. While he was there three hunters appeared on the scene and claimed that the deer he shot was theirs, and that they had shot it first.

Whitford had already attached his seal on one horn of the deer and protested the claim, but, being alone, was unable to protect himself. The hunters attempted to break off the horn containing the seal but being unable to do so, one of them shot the antler off thus removing the seal and applied his own.

The law states that the first person wounding a deer sufficiently to cause bleeding so that it may be tracked from the blood is the rightful owner of it. Whitford states that, he was at least a mile away from the hunters when he killed the animal and that he was running at full speed and that he could not discover evidences of other shots besides his own. However regardless of who may have been the lawful owner, the hunter had no right to remove his tag and in so doing violated a state law.

Whitford took his matter up with the conservation officers and Prosecuting Attorney Nellist. Thus far no arrests have been made in the case. While the seal was destroyed the conservation officer issued a written permit for Whitford so that he could continue to hunt this season.

In the woods there are many real sportsmen who are out to enjoy the hunting and also there are others who are after deer for meat. One case was revealed when a young man from Detroit killed a deer and he told a group of Grayling hunters that he was just about the happiest hunter in the woods. He said that he had been out of work for months and for some time he and his family in Detroit had not tasted meat. Some friend of his had purchased for him a deer hunting license, another had given him a ride in his car and still another was going to take him back to Detroit. This 175 pound buck will be most welcome in his family for now they could again have meat for the family table.

Collects $10 Each From Hunters

A report has come in saying that a certain party had been attempting to collect $10 each from hunters camping on lands lying in South Branch Township belonging to Russell & Coon, Detroit. One of the parties approached called at the office of Prosecuting Attorney Nellist to get his opinion. It seems that the land is not posted against hunting. Whether or not they had a legal right to collect money for hunting privilege on those lands is a question. It does seem that any hunter would be unwise to dig up $10.00 for the right to hunt on land that has not been properly posted against hunting without the party making the demand furnish unquestionable authority for so doing.

TROOPER SHOTS HUNTER'S GUIDE

AUTO FAILS TO HALT FOR CONSERVATION OFFICER

Hunters in Kalkaska county seem to have given the conservation officers in that region plenty to do and plenty of trouble.

A Kalkaska story dated Nov. 17, and published in The Detroit News gives the following account:

Wake Sherwood, 60-year-old Kalkaska farmer and guide, is under arrest in a Cadillac hospital, and his son, Edward Sherwood, 19, and John Richter, of Novi, and William E. Hanson, of Northville, are in jail here, following a pursuit and the wounding of Wake Sherwood by Trooper Gerald Harris of the State Police.

Harris, assigned to the East Lansing post but sent north to enforce the hunting laws, was stationed on a road near Kalkaska Sunday night with Mark Cross, district conservation officer, searching automobiles for game violators.

Pursued 3 Miles

When Harris attempted to halt a sedan containing the two Sherwoods and the Wayne County men, the driver failed to stop and Harris gave chase. After a three-mile pursuit, he succeeded in forcing the car to the side of the road. When he approached the automobile to question the men, however, he found the doors locked. As he stepped on the runningboard, the driver started the car and threw Harris to the road. Harris, uninjured, fired five times. One shot struck Wake Sherwood in the shoulder. Harris then searched the auto-

THE BIG TRAIL AT RIALTO NOV. 25-26

Vast Territory Beyond Mississippi Opened Up Along Historic Route Vividly Visualized In "The BIG TRAIL"

One hundred years ago began a movement that was profoundly to affect the history and the contours of the United States. Its vehicle and its symbol was the pioneer wagon.

Between the first and ultimate rumblings of its westerling wheels it carried over a single trail at least 350,000 pioneers and gave to the United States undisputed windows on the Pacific Ocean and it influenced if it did not actually determine the Americanization of all the vast territory west of the Rocky Mountains that lies between lower California and the Canadian border.

It was a heroic conquest and President Hoover early this year asked that the centenary be fittingly observed.

Perhaps that request found no more substantial request than from Raoul Walsh, famous motion picture director who has filmed a reenactment of those days which contributed so much to American history.

His Fox Movietone production, "The Big Trail," which will be shown at the Rialto Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 25-26, has been acclaimed by previewers as the most important contribution to the screen to date.

The story of "The Big Trail" is by Hal G. Evarts, famous novelist and authority on the old and new West. It embodies a delightful romance between the leads, John Wayne, a youthful discovery of Walsh's who plays the role of "Breck Coleman," a boy who has lived with the Indians and eked out a living as a fur trapper and scout, and the girl, Marguerite Churchill, a daughter of the old South who mobile and reported finding two mutilated deer which Richter and Hanson admitted, the officers said, were does.

Wayne Simmons, prosecuting attorney, took statements from Sherwood in the hospital and from the three prisoners in jail.

Officer Run Over

Charles Hickling, Kalkaska County conservation officer, stationed on another road near Kalkaska, attempted to halt an automobile later in the evening, only to have the driver hit him and run over his leg. Hickling, who was bruised, was able to give chase with other officers and he overtook the automobile half a mile down the road. Lawrence O'Neil, of Kalkaska, the driver, was placed in jail here. The officers reported finding a doe beside the road and O'Neil has admitted, the officers say, that he threw it from the car during the pursuit.

Ten other persons arrested near Kalkaska for having does in their possession or firing from automobiles were leased on their promise to appear today for arraignment.

The picture abounds in thrills as would be expected of a faithful narrative of the brave pioneers of a century ago.

We see the start of the wagon train, with a prayer, from the banks of the Missouri River. We see the first night's encampment, the fording of the river, the pioneer wagons bogged in a mud hole, the Indian attack on the wagon train, the truly thrilling cliff scene, the buffalo hunt and the end of the trail in the pioneers' Valley of Dreams.

It is a picture for fathers, for mothers, for the kiddies; in fact it holds a strong appeal for every American with a drop of red blood in his veins. El Brendel, "Swede" character comic, shares the featured honors with Wayne and Miss Churchill, while Tully Marshall, Tyrone Power and David Rollins are among the 93 principal players who have actual speaking roles. The company in its entirety includes 20,000 players.

The housewife who buys Government-graded beef knows she is getting what she expects. Uncle Sam's official stamp shows both the class and grade of the beef, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which supervises this grading and stamping service. The classes of beef in order of excellence are steer and heifer beef, cow beef, stag beef, and bull beef; the official grades, in order of excellence, are Prime, Choice, Good, Medium, Common, Cutter, and Low Cutter. Consumers in a community that is not now supplied with Government-stamped beef may learn from dealers how such beef can be obtained, says the Department of Agriculture.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

Now the election is over and the analysis of the results has begun. Fortunately this will soon be over and then there will be nothing for the politicians to do except to get ready for 1932. It is not to be denied that the results this year were a sweeping victory for the Democratic Party. But the conclusions which have been drawn by enthusiastic members of that political faith to the effect that the recent election presages the election of a Democratic President in 1932 are a trifle premature to say the least.

It is true that the Democratic Party has made a wonderful comeback after its rout in 1928. But the Republican reverse was not due to any desire on the part of the voting public to elect a Democratic President in 1932. Ordinary folks do not look that far ahead, even if the professional politicians do. The result this year was due to a number of causes. First was the natural reaction from the Republican tidal wave of 1928. This would have resulted in the loss of Republican congressmen in many districts, even under favorable circumstances, for the simple reason that in 1928 the Republicans carried a number of Democratic districts which they had no business carrying, speaking from the political standpoint. This natural reaction, however, would not have destroyed Republican control of Congress except for additional Republican handicaps, the principal one of which of course is the economic depression.

The depression, as has been often said, is of world-wide dimensions. In fact Uncle Sam is better off than most of the civilized nations of the globe. There have been revolutions and overthrowing of government in various parts of the world. In the United States we take out our spite on the party in power when a depression comes, although we are not in the habit of doing it through the ballot and can do it thoroughly when necessary. And so the Republican administration, being in power, had to take the punishment, although not even a Democratic statesman would have the hardihood to say that the panic would have been avoided had Al Smith been chosen President in 1928.

The liquor question undoubtedly had something to do with the results in many states, and in most instances where there was an out and out fight of this kind the wets seemed to have the better of it. But it is not to be forgotten that the wets had the advantage of the panic, and had the country been prosperous the people would not have been so disturbed about all things, including the liquor question. That the depression was the paramount cause of Republican disaster is evidenced by the fact that in most states Republican wets and drys suffered alike.

But the election of this month in itself does not presage a Democratic national victory in 1932, although of course a continuance of hard times for two years longer would undoubtedly go a long way toward assuring such a political rarity. But the chances are that before the 1932 election the country will be on the upgrade again. And while Democrats have a habit of pulling together in off-year elections they have the equally pronounced habit of splitting up during presidential campaign years. The reason is that in congressional elections the candidates stand pretty much on their own platforms, while in national campaigns the party leaders must meet and formulate a platform for the party in the entire nation. In national elections the presidential candidate must run on the same platform, in New York, in Alabama and in California. This is not the case in congressional elections. And so when 1932 rolls around it is barely possible that the Democratic party will not be so unitedly militant as it was this year. It may be militant when Mr. Raskob and Mr. Josephus Daniels, and the wet Tammians delegates and the dry Georgia delegates get together and the militancy will probably be displayed by the delegates against one another. Of course the Republicans may have similar troubles. Only time itself can tell. A lot of water must flow under the political bridges before November, 1932, and conditions will doubtless be far different than they are today, politically as well as economically.

68,241 VISIT HARTWICK PINES IN 1930

Michigan's 52 state parks open to the public during the 1930 season were visited by 8,911,000 people.

This figure, included in a report submitted to Director George R. Hogarth of the Department of Conservation by the Parks Division shows a 19 per cent increase over the 1929 season. During the season just closed there were 154,425 campers at the parks, representing an increase of 11 per cent over the previous year. The totals represent those visiting the parks until October 1, when compilation ceased.

Michigan residents constituted 128,806 of the campers listed with 25,519 out-of-state visitors. As in past years Ohio continued to contribute the largest number of non-resident campers, with 9,268 from that state; Illinois second with 6,390 campers; Indiana third with 4,656; and Wisconsin and Canada tied for fourth place, each sending 1,028. Other states having considerable representations at the parks were: California 326; Florida 211; Iowa 234; Minnesota 275; New York 327; Pennsylvania 409.

Campers built 44,257 camps during the year at one or another of the state parks with the Bay City State Park far in the lead. This park reported 16,418 campers for the season. According to the report, the Bay City State Park has become the most popular of the state's entire system. The park had 1,565,983 visitors during the season. The Grand Haven Park was the only other park going over the million mark for 1930. This park reported 1,154,250 visitors.

Forty-seven states were represented among the visitors and campers at the parks this year. One camping party of four registered from Peru. In three years Michigan's state parks have shown an increase in attendance of almost 300 per cent. In 1925 the Parks Division reported a total attendance of 2,539,872 visitors. The next year it had increased to 3,509,425. In 1927 it was 5,107,437 and in 1928, 5,846,411. Last year's attendance was 7,454,741.

The increase in attendance at the parks this year has been fairly consistent in parks located in all parts of the state. P. J. Kohnmaster, Superintendent of State Parks said in presenting his report, "This same thing occurred last year. Some of the parks are reaching their saturation point, especially in the southwest part of the state and the Parks Division is now engaged in surveying areas in that part of the state for possible park sites which will offer an outlet for the continued increase in popularity of the parks."

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Few Americans know that the original Presidential Thanksgiving Proclamation was lost for over a hundred years; that it was found at an auction sale in 1921; that it was bought by the Library of Congress for $300.00; and that it now reposes in the archives of that institution—one of the most valuable documents in the world. The Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, in a statement issued today, relates the story of the lost proclamation.

On September 25, 1789, Elias Boudinot introduced the following resolution in the House of Representatives: "Resolved, That a joint committee of both Houses be directed to wait upon the President of the United States, to request that he would recommend to the people of the United States a day of public Thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging, with grateful hearts, the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity to establish a Constitution of government for their safety and happiness."

Harmless as this resolution seems, there were objections to it. In reading the Annals of Congress of that period, we find that Representative Aedanus Burke of South Carolina thought we should not mimic Europe "where they made a mere mockery of thanksgiving."

Representative Thomas Tudor Tucker, also of South Carolina, argued that it was not the business of Congress to ask for a national day of Thanksgiving.

"They (the people) may not be inclined to return thanks for a Constitution until they have experienced that it promotes their safety and happiness."

These objections, however, were overruled; the resolution was passed and sent to the Senate for concurrence. The Senate approved and appointed its committee to wait on the President. The joint committee was made up of Ralph Izard of South Carolina and William S. Johnson of Connecticut, from the Senate; Elias Boudinot of New Jersey, Roger Sherman of Connecticut, and Peter Sylvester of New York, from the House.

Washington complied with the request and on October 3, 1789, issued his proclamation, calling for a National day of Thanksgiving on Thursday, November 26. And then the document dropped out of sight. It apparently was misplaced or attached to some private papers in the process of moving of official records from one city to another when the Capital was changed. However, it happened, the original manuscript was not in the official archives until 1921 when Dr. J. C. Fitzpatrick, then Assistant Chief of the Manuscripts Division of the Library of Congress, and now Editor of the forthcoming George Washington Bicentennial Commission series of "Washington's Writings," found the proclamation. It was at an auction sale being held in the American Art Galleries of New York City. Dr. Fitzpatrick, an expert in Washingtonian documents, examined the document and found it to be authentic. It was written in long hand by Wm. Jackson, Secretary to President Washington at the time, and was signed in George Washington's bold hand. Dr. Fitzpatrick purchased the document for $300.00 for the Library of Congress where it is now kept as a treasure. And no amount of money could remove it.

The original Proclamation of Thanksgiving, and, indeed, the first Presidential proclamation ever issued in the United States, reads as follows: "By the President of the United States of America: Whereas it is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefits, and humbly to implore his protection and favor; and Whereas both Houses of Congress have by their joint committee requested me to recommend to the People of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness; Now, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the People of these States to the service of that great and glorious Being who is the beneficent Author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be—that we may then unite in rendering unto him our sincere and humble thanks—for his kind care and protection of the People of this country previous to their becoming a Nation—for the signal and manifold mercies and the favorable interpositions of his providence, which we experienced in the course and conclusion of the late war—for the great degree of tranquility, union, and plenty, which we have since enjoyed—for the peaceable and rational manner in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government for our safety and happiness, and particularly the national one now lately instituted—for the civil and religious liberty with which we are blessed and the means we have of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge; and in general for all the great and various favors which He hath been pleased to confer upon us. And also that we may then unite in most humble offering our prayers and supplications to the great Lord and Ruler of Nations, and beseech him to pardon our national and other transgressions—to enable us all, whether in public or private stations, to perform our several and relative duties properly and punctually—to render our national government a blessing to all the People by constantly being a Government of wise, just, and constitutional laws, discreetly and faithfully executed and obeyed—to protect and guide all Sovereigns and Nations (especially such as have shown kindness to us) and to bless them with good Government, peace, and concord. To promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue, and the increase of science among them and us—and generally to grant unto all mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as He alone knows to be best.

"Given under my hand at the City of New York the third day of October in the year of our Lord, 1789.

(Signed) George Washington." Celebration of Thanksgiving Day in America can be traced back to the earliest days of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. From there the custom spread to all parts of the United States.

A Cardinal Attacks the Stage

All churches, regardless of their attachments, should rejoice in the fact that Cardinal Hayes, Roman Catholic Prelate of the Diocese of New York, has spoken in no uncertain terms concerning the moral filth and profanity of certain plays now running in New York and other cities. While it is true, that the indecent play might be the exception rather than the rule so that the words of the Cardinal might be an overstatement of the fact, yet it is wholesome to have someone in his position of leadership speak his mind. We quote his words: "We have jails only for those who cannot control themselves and those who are not just to their fellowmen, but we have no jails for those who are not just toward God. We have jails only for those who seem to take life and property—things we see and touch and are under our eye. And today—we are very sensitive to the financial depression. O, would that we were as equally sensitive to the moral depression at times—to the low standards of morality. We have a stage that is reeking with filth and there seems to be no power in the city of New York to stop it."

Of course the theatre comes back with the old excuse, "We give the public what it wants." But a New York paper snaps back at them by saying—"They do nothing of the kind. They force indecency upon the theatre-going public. The public does not want indecency. The public mind is a clean mind."

In thus speaking, Cardinal Hayes has become the Voice of the whole Church.

FOREST PLANTED BY AIRPLANE IN HAWAII

Hawaiian foresters planted 298,650 trees in the Territory's forest reserves last year, according to a report of the Hawaiian Commission of Agriculture and Forestry just received by the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. One hundred and forty-seven kinds of trees were planted, ash, oaks, and paperbark leading, and the California coast redwood coming fourth with 23,392. Over 623,800 trees, grown in the commission's nurseries under a cooperative agreement with the United States Forest Service, were also distributed for forest planting on privately owned lands.

A large eroded area was sown to a mixture of tree seeds by airplane, a United States Army plane broadcasting 1,689 pounds of seeds from an elevation of 2,000 feet.

Midnight Fire

Sunday morning between twelve and one o'clock, our village—or the most of it, was awakened by the alarm of fire. "We were sleeping the sweet sleep of 'Youth and innocence' when disturbed by a terrible thumping on the door by night watchman Nolan, who tipped his hat and advised us that this office was burning.

We came down to see, and found the woodhouse nearly consumed, and the adjoining storeroom going fast, while the south end of the office was a perfect sheet of flame, which quickly ate its way through doors and windows into the pressroom.

The "boys with the machine" were on their muscle and fought the fire inch by inch, until they conquered. No flame passed the center of the building, but the smoke was intolerable and the deluge of water did considerable damage. The water pressure was all that could be wished and there was never two lines of hose handled more perfectly.

While they were fighting the fire scores of our citizens had moved our law office, books, papers and furniture across the street and large quantities of stock and printing material, though the latter was badly damaged by smoke and some by water.

At this writing, the loss has not been inventoried, but is estimated at from $1,200.00 to $1,500.00, insured in the North River, of New York on the building, and the German, of Pittsburgh, on the printing outfit.

The fire was undoubtedly incendiary as there was never any fire in the building where it started. We fear there may be a fire-bug in our midst.

You will notice that the Avalanche yet slides, notwithstanding?

Gama Phi Delta will meet on Friday evening the 22nd, at the home of Miss Florence Wakefield.

The Nicholas Brothers of Roscommon threshed 554 bushels of clover seed and 12,321 bushels of different kinds of grain in Crawford county this season.

We are glad to be alive, and glad that we live in Grayling. The prompt work of citizens during our fire, and the words of sympathy and good cheer since, are better than gold.

We ask the indulgence of our readers this week if our columns are not quite up to the standard typographically. Heat and water having twisted cuts and really we have labored under some little disadvantage.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kraus will entertain the Odd Fellows and their wives and the Rebekas and their husbands at their home Friday evening, Nov. 22nd, for the benefit of the new Odd Fellows Hall.

During our fire Sunday morning the store of Connine & Co. next door caught, and the flames quickly reached the cornice and roof, but was quickly extinguished with but small loss on building and small loss on feed by the water. It was close enough for comfort.

The girls of the Valhalla club met with Miss Laura Munn last Friday evening. Miss Nell Johnson of Roscommon and Miss Nettie Millikin of Beaver Creek were guests. After a pleasant evening the girls went to their several homes, thinking of the delightful lunch which had been served.

We are under obligation to the Roscommon News for the privilege of using their office and press for this issue. Our forms and paper were taken there yesterday noon and returned at 8:30 in the evening, so that we are out practically on time. We have never missed an issue since 1881 and felt it was too late to begin.

Reports from different parts of the country show that last Sunday 2 inches of snow fell in Detroit, 6 inches in William, W. Va., 2 inches in Cleveland, Ohio, 2 inches in western Kansas, and 2 inches in Colorado Springs, Col.

We are especially indebted to A. Kraus for the storage of our goods taken from the office during the fire Sunday morning, and to G. L. Alexander for caring for papers and offering us the use of his office for storing, as we might wish, and the same offer from Dr. H. H. Merriman. All of which is appreciated.

We return thanks to Mrs. A. B. Felling, now at Monroe, La., for a fine bouquet of cotton balls. We had not seen the plant growing since the war in Dixie. It is interesting.

Since writing of our fire, we have discovered some unexpected losses. All the wood type in the office is ruined, as well as nearly all of our half-toned cuts. The terrific heat and steam having warped them so they stand northwest and crossheel.

NINETY DISASTERS CALL FOR RED CROSS RELIEF, AT COST OF $1,200,000

Vice Chairman Fieser Cites Readiness to Act of National Society, Which Lessens Loss of Life—3,500 Chapters Aid in Work.

Readiness to act in an emergency, should a disaster strike, has become part of the Red Cross Chapter program in thousands of communities.

The need for this training of local committees was revealed last year, when more than ninety communities required disaster relief work by the Red Cross.

As in former years, tornadoes brought the greatest damage. Twenty-four serious tornadoes occurred. Fire also took toll of life and property in twenty-four communities. Seven forest fires did great damage; eighteen areas were affected by floods, and nine storms caused heavy losses. Other disasters were cloudbursts, cyclones, epidemics, mine explosions and shipwrecks. In the insular possessions of the United States the Red Cross gave relief in twelve disasters, chiefly from hurricanes. In foreign countries relief was given by the American Red Cross in six instances of earthquakes, floods and to refugees.

The disaster relief work of the Red Cross cost $1,208,151 last year. Statistics showed an approximate death rate of 790 persons in these disasters; buildings destroyed or damaged, 19,578; persons injured, 1,487, and persons assisted by the Red Cross, 95,872.

Through disaster preparedness of Red Cross Chapters, undoubtedly great numbers of lives were saved, and much distress and grief following the calamities was prevented, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations of the Red Cross.

"This type of work is supported by the memberships of citizens of the United States, their volunteer contributions, and their devoted work," Mr. Fieser said.

"Every man and woman is urged to join as a member of the local Red Cross Chapter, not only to be a part in supporting the work through his membership, but also to serve should an emergency occur."

Life Savers Numerous

More than a quarter of a million persons are entitled to wear the American Red Cross insignia, denoting they have been taught the expert life saving methods of the organization. The number enrolled to date is 273,302.

PLANTING MORE FINGERLINGS

The changed policy of planting fingerlings rather than fry in Michigan's inland waters has resulted in a greater need for feeding stations and rearing ponds and a diminishing need for hatcheries scattered about the state, Director George R. Hogarth said today. Director Hogarth was commenting on scores of letters received by the Department protesting because of the recent discontinuance of several of the smaller state fish hatcheries.

Every year the proportion of fingerlings over fry planted is increasing—that is, just as rapidly as facilities permit, he said. This will mean that fewer but larger fish will be planted. Some of the trout planted this year were of legal size and many more will be of legal length next spring.

With this fingerling program in operation, and expanding, the need for places to hatch eggs is diminishing. Hatching can be done more effectively and much more cheaply in a few large hatcheries where water temperatures are conducive to early hatching and rapid development. Modern transportation facilities and better methods of handling fish permit this while formerly it was necessary to scatter hatcheries over the state to facilitate planting.

As the new program continues, hatching will be concentrated in a few large units. Other hatcheries will be utilized as rearing units with establishment of more field rearing ponds and feeding stations to supply fingerlings fish for planting in nearby waters.

FARM WORLD SENDS BEST TO CHICAGO STOCK SHOW

Heavy entries in all departments of the nation's premier livestock show, the International Live Stock Exposition, are reported by Secretary-manager B. H. Heide.

Every foot of the 20 acres of buildings that comprise the permanent home of this mammoth agricultural show at the Chicago Stock Yards will be crowded with the finest products that farmers and livestockmen of this nation and others produce. As in past years, the exposition will open on the first Saturday after Thanksgiving, November 29, and will extend through to the following Saturday, December 6.

Entire Nation Represented
Indicative of the wide area from which entries have been received for the coming show, Heide cites several of the leading breeds of beef cattle that will be on view. In the instance of the Angus breed, herds will meet at Chicago from as far separate states as Washington and New York; the Shorthorns will come from as distant points as Ohio and California; and the Herefords from Wisconsin to West Virginia. Sheep will be represented from Vermont to Wyoming; swine from Minnesota to Florida; and horses from Saskatchewan to Maryland. The International thereby becomes an annual continental "clearing house" from which emerge the champions of the day.

Forty-seven of the world's leading livestock judges are enlisted to pass upon these choice animals. The management announces that eleven states, the District of Columbia, and two foreign countries have been drawn upon to furnish the judicial talent. Canada will send two judges, and three men will come from Scotland to act in this capacity.

Called "Supreme Court"
The International Live Stock Exposition, in its geographic position, permanently situated in Chicago, the industrial and farm capital of the continent, and in its calendar position at the close of the American agricultural show season, each year attracts to its exhibits and visitors from every part of the continent where farming is of importance, and thus justifies the name that has been given it, "The Supreme Court of the Agricultural World."

All the railroads entering Chicago are offering reduced round-trip fares for the week of the exposition, and in a number of states special trains are being organized.

"KONJOLA SAVED MY LIFE" SAYS DETROIT LADY

Nervousness And Constipation Of Years Standing Yield To New Medicine—Four Bottles Bring Health

MRS. MARGARET HAYNES

"Konjola saved my life," said Mrs. Margaret Haynes, 2734 Fourth street, Detroit. "I was a nervous wreck, so nervous that I could not bear to be in the company of my own family. I frequently left the table at mealtime in order to be away from everyone and everything. I was unable to eat and became terribly run down and was losing weight rapidly. No matter what I tried nothing relieved me until I took Konjola."

"Before I took this medicine I was terribly constipated. I was listless, sleepy and unable to do my work properly. This had been going on over a period of fifteen years. I have taken four bottles of Konjola and today my nerves are in much better shape. I have an excellent appetite and am free from the misery of constipation. I cannot say enough in praise of Konjola and I have all my friends taking it."

When given a real trial over a period of from six to eight weeks, Konjola has made a record that would often challenge belief were the actual facts not known and verified.

Konjola is sold in Grayling, Michigan at the Mac & Gidley drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

VALUE OF AERIAL MAPPING

According to the Navy Recruiting Station, Detroit, the British have recently used airplanes in making a survey of Northern Rhodesia, and report that in three months a complete survey was taken, which would have required eight years under ordinary methods of ground survey. More than 15,000 photographs of open country and 700 towns were taken during the survey. The plane flew at an altitude of 21,000 feet. Three cameras were fitted to the plane, and were arranged special mountings which enabled the operators to lower them sufficiently to secure views unobscured by any projections on the plane. The purpose of the survey is to provide a means of planning road and railway developments.

STORING POTATOES

To insure a uniform supply of late potatoes throughout the winter, from 65 to 75 per cent of the total crop must be stored either on the farm, at the shipping station, or at terminals. The U. S. Department of Agriculture makes these recommendations for successful storage of potatoes. Protect them from extremes of heat or cold—from 35 degrees to 40 degrees F. is the best temperature. Supply good ventilation. Keep the storage house dark—the table quality of potatoes deteriorates in the light. See that the tubers are dry and reasonably free from dirt when put into storage. Remove all diseased, badly cut, or bruised tubers before storing them. It is better not to store them deeper than 5 or 6 feet, or on a floor space larger than 12 by 12 feet, unless ventilating shafts are provided.

NATION-WIDE "GO TO CHURCH" MOVEMENT NOW UNDER WAY

The Nation-wide "Go to Church" Movement, which is considered by its founders as the greatest and most comprehensive "Go to Church" appeal ever made to the American people, will continue until every person in the country has had the opportunity to participate. While primarily inspired as a means of making the general public more church-conscious and increasing church attendance, the Movement incidentally represents a great potential source of revenue for all churches participating. It also serves to bring revenue to ministers' retirement or pension funds, missionary and extension societies, or other denominational funds of which the public seldom hears about.

THE RECITAL

The lengthy recital had drawn to a close, ice cream and cake had been served, and the teacher was bidding the students good-by. One of the little performers had brought her small brother with her. As he was about to leave, the teacher beamingly asked: "Well, Bobby, did you enjoy the recital?"

"Yes," answered Bobby, "all but the music."

GETS FINE AND JAIL SENTENCE

Convicted of a second offense against the game laws, William Munroe, Chippewa County, was sentenced to pay a fine of $50, costs of $10.60 and to serve 90 days in jail.

Munroe was charged with illegal possession of a partridge. He had been previously convicted of illegal possession of venison and paid a $50 fine for the first offense.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

Beets, turnips, and carrots will keep well if stored in boxes or barrels and covered with slightly moistened sand. Add a little water from time to time to keep the sand from drying out.

Darkened nests in the poultry house prevent the birds from acquiring the egg-eating habit. These nests are built out from the wall so the birds enter them from the rear, and have a door in front which is opened for gathering the eggs.

When planting unhulled sweet-clover seed, sow it in late fall, winter, or early spring. Plant the seed late enough in the fall so it can not germinate before spring. The action of moisture and frost breaks the seed coat and the seed will sprout with the first warm weather in spring. Unhulled seed is cheaper than hulled or scarified seed and may be seeded more liberally.

Late fall is one of the best times to destroy pocket gophers. You may catch them with the special traps now on the market, or poison them with a vegetable or grain bait. For riding alfalfa fields, orchards, or ditch embankments of this pest, poisoning is the most practical method. Place the baits in the main runways, a two points in each system of from 10 to 30 mounds, which is usually the home of one pocket gopher.

Farm wages on October 1 were at the lowest level since April, 1923, because of poor crop prospects, farm-products price declines, and the fact that the supply of farm hands is more than 40 per cent in excess of the demand, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture. "The supply is in excess of the demand in all geographical sections, ranging from 24 per cent in the North Atlantic States to 50 per cent in the East North Central States."

Quick Frozen Poultry
A new method of marketing frozen poultry by preparing it full drawn has come into considerable use in the last few years, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture. After the poultry is dressed, the head, feet, and entrails are removed, and the giblets are cleaned, wrapped in parchment or waxed paper, and replaced. Then the whole carcass is frozen by a quick process and marketed in a frozen state. It is thought that the meat is sweeter and finer flavored than when the entrails are not removed; and removal of the inedible parts saves freight.

Treated Posts Last Longer
By treating with coal-tar creosote, short-lived woods such as soft maple, beech, sweet gum, young or sap pine, and red oak may be made more durable for use as posts and poles on the farm. The longer life of the treated wood and the possibility of using some of the cheap and inferior kinds more than offset the cost of treatment, says the Forest Service. Timber should be peeled 3 or 4 months before treatment and should become thoroughly seasoned. Keep the butts of the posts for 1 or 2 hours in creosote heated to 180 degrees to 220 degrees F., treating the wood to about a foot above where it will meet the surface of the ground. In a southern climate, the whole post should then be put into cold oil, 80 degrees to 100 degrees F., for 1 or 2 hours. In northern climates, where decay is less rapid, the cold treatment is applied usually to the butts only, the tops being treated by painting or dipping in creosote.

Disaster Relief and Service to War Veterans Make Heavy Demands—First Aid on Highways New Plan.

Demands upon the public services that the American Red Cross is organized to give are increasingly heavy, and will continue to be so in the future, John Barton Payne, chairman, has announced.

The two major services of the society—service to war veterans and their dependents, and relief in disasters—show each year a greater number of persons helped by the Red Cross.

Pension legislation passed recently for World War Veterans, and increased allotments to all Spanish-American War Veterans, have given to Chapters and the national society many thousands of additional cases to handle, Judge Payne said.

In the past year help was given in 108 disasters. Ninety of these were in the United States, twelve in foreign possessions and six were in foreign countries.

Health activities of the Red Cross also are being extended, especially in the rural communities where all health authorities agree the greatest need exists. Red Cross, with 794 nurses in its employ, is the greatest employer of public health nurses in rural areas in the United States.

In its campaign against accidental deaths, begun twenty years ago with its life saving and first aid programs, the Red Cross now has adopted an additional program—that of combating the huge toll of life from automobile accidents on the highways.

Expenditures of the Red Cross in the past year were $4,254,793.34, of which $1,202,151.09 was spent in disaster relief, the chairman pointed out.

"The Red Cross depends upon the public for its support, through their memberships enrolled once each year in the period from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day," Judge Payne said.

"We do not receive any support from the Government, or through other taxation, although as the President of the United States is president of the society, and one-third of its governing members are representatives of U. S. Departments, it ranks as a semi-governmental agency."

"By joining as a member, in the local Red Cross chapter, once each year, during the annual Roll Call, every citizen will have a part in carrying on this great humanitarian task."

Motor Injuries Treated By Red Cross First Aid

In line with its work for the preservation of life and prevention of accidental death, the American Red Cross has adopted a new program of emergency first aid stations on the highways of the nation, where victims of automobile injuries will be helped.

In the last year 31,000 persons were killed as the result of automobile accidents and more than 1,000,000 were injured. As its contribution to the nation wide safety campaign of other organizations, the Red Cross will aid through the emergency stations. A number already are in operation by Chapters on such important traffic arteries as the Westchester County, N. Y., park system, the Valley Forge and Gettysburg highways in Pennsylvania and the White Horse Pike in New Jersey, connecting with Atlantic City.

Saving Mothers and Babies Is Important Red Cross Task

Saving mothers' lives and better babies were important features during the past year of the Public Health Nursing Service of the American Red Cross. About four-fifths of the 794 nurses in the Red Cross work made more than 100,000 prenatal and maternal visits, in addition to assisting doctors in the examination of 1,309,409 school children.

Statistics reveal that the lives of two out of three American women who die in maternity cases could be saved if they received proper medical and nursing care. As more than 15,000 women die in the United States each year from various diseases of the maternal state, this means that more than 10,000 of these deaths are preventable.

Comfort Kits Sent 40,000 Service Men by Red Cross

Gay patterned cretonne bags, or comfort kits, containing articles useful and amusing, are sent by the Red Cross to 40,000 soldiers, sailors and Marines, on foreign service, as Christmas remembrances.

The little gift bags are donated and packed by women in Red Cross Chapters all over the country. They are despatched by Army transport in the early autumn in order to reach the foreign ports and posts of the U. S. services in time to be hung on the Christmas trees. Giving the remembrances from home is the outgrowth of a plan adopted by the Red Cross prior to the World War when so many National Guard regiments were on the Mexican border.

The ladies of Michelson Memorial church gave their annual harvest supper and Christmas gift booth on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The gift booth in charge of Mrs. C. G. Clippert was filled with a wonderful assortment of articles which sold very well indeed. The supper was excellent and satisfied the appetites of a large crowd. Mrs. Fred Welsh was general chairman of the supper with Mrs. Holger Schmidt as chairman of the kitchen. The affair netted the Aid around $200.

On his 81st birthday which was last Thursday, Severin Jensen was made happy when many of their friends dropped in in the afternoon to wish him many happy returns of the day. Good things made in Danish style were brought by many and the usual afternoon coffee so much enjoyed by the Danish people and which is a custom followed by most of them was served to those who came. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jensen have hosts of friends and their birthdays are never forgotten.

Editor Harry Myers and Phip Yorker, both of Lapeer, started on a canoe trip down the AuSable Monday, launching their canoe at Cedar street bridge. They will go down as far as Mio, hunting deer at intervals and camping at night. They have Alaska sleeping bags along and say they have no fears of cold or stormy weather. Mr. Myers made the trip down the AuSable this summer and enjoyed it so much and saw so many deer that he wanted to try it out for deer hunting.

Expecting to hear the command "hands up", Spike hurriedly threw the till bag into an empty nail keg last week Friday night, at the Hanson Hardware right after a sharp gunshot rang out. It was closing time and he had just gathered up the proceeds of the cash register when a hunter who was trying to find the right kind of cartridges to fit a makeshift rifle accidentally discharged his weapon. Luckily the gun was pointing to the floor and a round hole in the floor was the only damage done. Just a few seconds before the accidental discharge, Morgan Paige was passing thru the store and before walking in front of an upturned muzzle he asked the hunter to lower his gun while he passed out. This he did and it was soon after that the gun went off. Fortunately nobody was hurt except that Spike lost a week's growth from fright but the money was safe.

JOHN J. NIEDERER IS MAKING TAX ROLLS AGAIN

For 42 years in succession John J. Niederer has made tax rolls in Crawford county every fall many of them for himself, during the years when he was supervisor and always made some for the other townships. He says he can make them just as well as he ever could and just as accurate as ever. He made his first roll in 1889 for the township of Blaine, then consisting of Town 27-1 and 27-2. At that time Crawford county had nine organized townships and nine supervisors. All the timber was yet standing. It was some county then but now the timber is all gone and in place of it you can see a whole lot of transformations and pictures of Henry Ford; but still we go on.
